Seen, Heard and Told

By The Editor

—V—

No gentle reader, the war is not over. It is only the end of the beginning, as Churchill so aptly phrased it. Bitter and perhaps long years are ahead. Oceans of blood and millions of lives and billions of treasure have yet to be expended. Do not slacken your efforts.

Attention is invited to the fact that the above cut of Camp McCain was designed by me, and that I have applied for a copyright for it. Nuff sed.

The last four pages of our roto section, 32 pages in all, are in the hands of the Ruralist Pres in Atlanta, and, if we do not get it out before that time, will make a Christmas edition of it. The two-weeks' illness of Mr. Meyers caused a delay, but that's water over the mill. I believe we will have at least 16 pages of regular black and white. The latter will contain a veritable mine of information about Grenada and Grenada County. Extra copies of this issue will cost 25 cents, mailed anywhere, PROVIDED you get your names in before we issue the paper. After that, of course, you will have to bear the postage expense.

According to the Jackson Daily News, a poll of men in service disclosed that 60 percent of them preferred the home town paper as a gift. They have everything else.

Orders are piling up on us for personal stationery and stationery for men in the service. Greenfield and Horn will NOT get into devilment THIS week-end.

Churchill gave Musso's minions a chance in his speech Sunday. If they heed his words, Italy can spare itself utter destruction. They must choose between the pot-bellied misfit, Musso, and peace.

If a man is subject to epileptic fits he should not be permitted to drive a car, for such fits come without any warning. A driver stricken with a fit loses all control of his muscles, and, consequently, all control of the car which, of course, is guided by his brain and muscles.

Brother V. W. Purdy, who has been doing a good job looking after the interests of the Federal Land Bank and collecting a lot of money (instead of a lot of good excuses, as of the lean years) is soon to join Uncle Sam's forces, and will relinquish his past to an older man. The GCW will follow him wherever he goes.

Dear Santa Claus: please send me some more postal cards. Your little friend, Mike S. Conner, Jackson Miss.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kahn, of Duck Hill, are visiting th. kinfolks, the Stebers in Chester, Ill. They will remain there until after the first if the year.

I despise hypocrites.

A subscription to the GCW would be an all year Christmas gift to some friend, relative or boy in the armed forces.

The job cusomers were good (and smart enlugh, tol) enough ti keep Horn and Greenfield out of devilment last week-end. Do it again.

Revell is about the busiest man in town, next to Hal Cullen and Baker Dennis.

Brither R. J. Stoker stoked our financial furnace with a couple of dollars this week.

Matt Cooley had several boarders at Hotel de Jail Saturday night.

I hope the supervisours will reconsider and give the sheriff more help.

Christmtas gift selections are going to be very limited this year. So far, we have no difficulty in getting paper. How about some personalized stationery which is a gift acceptable to everyone?

The Grenada County Weekly is grateful to Sister S. D. Johns for another dollar. She is an optimist, believing that the GCW will last at least six months longer.

Our Mr. Greenfield failed to sing his favorite solo, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" at the USO dance Saturday night, the folks missed a rare treat.

Congratulations to my church, the Presbyterian, in case you do not know, for opening up some of its rooms as recreation rooms for the soldiers. Others should follow.

Notes About Special Edition

Well, we have the last of our 32 pages of "copy" in the hands of the firm which does the rotogravue offset printing, and we are hopeful that we can issue our special "All Out For Victory" edition on December 17; if not, surely we can have it as a Christmas edition. Those wishing space in the black and white, or regular part of the GCW, have time to get it. We are going to print 3,000 copies (raising the ante from 2,500) and will have 1,500 of the brown section.

We believe (in fact, we KNOW) this edition will be the largest and best issue of a newspaper ever put into the Grenada post office.

Every financial cooperator in this issue is entitled to a reasonable number of copies, which we will mail out without further charge, PROVIDED you get in the names and addresses before publication day.

These issues will sell for 25 cents a copy. You can save at least 5 cents postage if you put in your order AHEAD of time. If you put the names of your friends in the pot ahead of time, we will take care of the postage.

Some of you folks who have sent in names and addresses have been extremely modest. You have an opportunity to add to the list if you wish.

Those not "in" this issue will be sorry.

Mr. Meyers, who has been helping us on this issue, has lost just about two weeks; a week in the hospital, and about a week with an injured brother in Little Rock. This, of necessity, has delayed the publication. But those things will happen and there is nothing that can be done about it.

I expect some arrangements will be made to sell copies of these issues at the canteens, and at several newsstands.

The City of Grenada and the Chamber of Commerce, each will get 500 copies of this issue to store away for future distribution. That's a compliment to the GCW.

First Dance At Camp McCain Sponsored By USO Grenada

The USO of Grenada very graciously sponsored the first dance to be given at Camp McCain Service Club No. 1, on the night of November 28th from eight o'clock in the evening until eleven o'clock. Despite the very rainy weather there was an attendance of eighty-five or more beautifully dressed Southern Belles and as many handsome soldiers, who were all cordially greeted by Mrs. Louise Avent, the hostess of the evening and in charge of the arrangements.

Dick Ross and his all colored orchestra won great applauses from the dancers with his own rendition of the very latest in dance tunes.

Everyone is looking forward to the next dance to be held at Service Club No. 1 about December 20th, and from the enthusiasm shown at the first dance, a larger crowd is expected to come and spend a most enjoyable evening.

American Legion Auxiliary Meets

On Monday evening the American Legion Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Lewis Odom.

Twelve members were present. Mrs. Sarah McCorkle, president, presided.

At this meeting the Christmas gifts for the Gift Shop, at the Soldiers Home at Biloxi were received. Each year the women of the American Legion select and wrap gifts, then send these accumulated gifts to the Gift Shop where the Veterans select gifts (free) to send to their loved ones back home.

The hostesses served hot chocolate and small cakes during the social hour.

No Quotas--No Loans

By George H. Williams
AAA Administrative Officer

When cotton producers of Grenada County go to the polls on December 12 to vote on the questiin of Marketing Quota for 1943, they will also cast a vote for or against the new 90 percent if parity loan. If quotas are voted down, the governmentt is prevented by law from offering a loan on cotton.

There is no question about it. The present high price of cotton is due largely to loans and quotas, and not to the war situation. Although domestic consumption has risen to new high levels, most of our foreign markets have been closed because of the war. The loss of exports has more than offset tthe rise in domestic consumption.

There is almost two years supply of cotton, and therefore cotton, except in the case of the longer staple lengths, can be called a surplus crop.

This year the county AAA committee increased the number of polling places to give every cotton farmer a chance to vote regardless of the shortage of gas and tires.

The following are the polling places for the county:

Oxberry, Holcomb, Ledore, Bell's Store, Cary Clark's Store, Dubard, Sweet Home, Court House, Kirkman, AAA Office, Hardy, Pearidge, Zion Grove, Geeslin, Nebo, Spears, Graysport, Taylor's Chapel, T. A. Ligon, Rose's Store, Gore Springs, Hugh Fite's Store, Bo Fite's Store, Carpenter's Store, Tie Plant, Abel's Store, Glenwild.

Henry Marter, our good old friend, of Graysport, was a Saturday visitor to Grenada. Wonder what has become of Constable Maben?

87th Division Calls All Veterans

To all veterans of the 87th Division, a call to colors—the colors of the 87th!

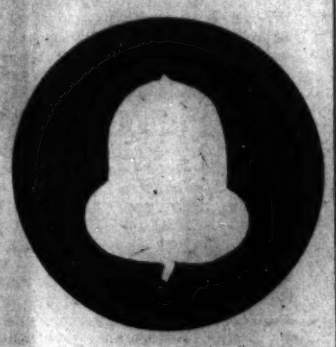
December 22, 1942 has been set aside for the ceremonies celebrating the Activation of the 87th Division at Camp McCain, Mississippi, six miles south of Grenada, and all former members of Division during the World War No. 1 are enthusiastically invited to be present.

While the 87th Division of Camp McCain is new in every phase, it still retains its identity and many of the traditions of the old. The new officers and Staff welcome the old 87'ers to come out and view the new equipment and facilities.

The Aviation Day program on December 22nd, will include many demonstrations and a full display of the Division's equipment. Those attending will be conducted on a tour of the buildings and barracks on the post.

A good time is to be had by all and best of all—a reunion of the men of the old 87th Division.

The 87th has come home to Mississippi, so come on out and look them over!



87TH DIVISION INSIGNIA

P. S. We have cuts of this emblem with which we can print two-color (green background and yellow acorn) stationery.

It would be a lot easier on the eyes if we could get some good looking ladies of the evening here, instead of the moth eaten ones.

You just have until Monday midnight to guzzle your beer. After then you will have to get back to skocat and home brew and bootleg beer.

They say that Runt Mobead, a veteran of the other war, has been called for this war.

Col. Wade and his daughter, who is our favorite correspondent, attended the banquet marking the dissolution of the Engineer Office at Vicksburg Saturday night. Henceforth, the Vicksburg office will look after river work, while the army construction work will be handled in Mobile.

Who Has A German Helmet?

A German helmet of the 1914-1918 days is needed in the Activation Exercises for the 87th Division to be held on December 22.

Anyone possessing such a helmet and willing to lend it for use on that occasion, is requested to contance Lt. Ray C. Hingle at Cabin 1, Grenada Tourist Court.

The Garden Club is entitled to the grand prize, a Victory Bond valued at $25.00 offered by Mrs. E. L. Wilkins, County Chairman for the Women's Drive for the club selling the most bonds during the stated period. The report follows:

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

On Tuesday afternoon club members met at the home of Mrs. John Rundle for one of the most interesting programs of the year. Three non member guests, Mesdames Sistrunk, Ashford, and Wells enjoyed the afternoon with the club members.

Mrs. Waterman was co-hostess. Lovely autumn flowers were sed to brighten the rooms.

Mrs. Perry president, presided, welcomed the visitors, and received report from the different officers, then presented Mrs. Vandiver and later Mrs. Cowles Horton members on program.

The first three months programs were about "Famous Women of Today and Yesterday", dealing with famous women of our allies. The next three months will be devoted to a study of women who are outstanding in literary circles, religious history and in artistic ability.

Mrs. R. L. Vandiver spoke most interestingly giving "The World At Her Shoulder," by Eunice Tietjens; Mrs. Cowles Horton reviewed the life and achievements of Emily Dickinson poetess, and read two of her poems.

Following this delightful program Mrs. Rundle and Mrs. Waterman served delectable grapefruit and grape salad on lettuce, fudge square and tea with lemon.

America Girds for Still Greater Effort As Pearl Harbor Anniversary Nears

A Review of Outstanding Engagements of Our Country's First Year at War.

By CHARLES A. SINGLER
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

With the approach of December 7—the "date of infamy"—Americans everywhere will reaffirm their determination to work, fight and sacrifice to win the war, and spend a little time in retrospect. No attempt will be made here to given an overall picture of what has happened during this fateful year, but rather a review of some of the great battles in which American soldiers, sailors, marines and fliers have been engaged.

Without difficulty we recall that fateful Sunday afternoon when, over a radio suddenly gone wild, the shocking and bewildering reports came in. Pearl Harbor had been attacked! People could hardly believe it. But it was true. The next day the United States declared war on Japan, and on December 16 war was declared on Japan's partners in crime, Germany and Italy.

Since then many thousands of brave American boys have been wrapped in the flag they loved, or have found a last resting place beneath the ocean's swell. These men have illuminated the pages of American history with deeds as bright as the orange flash of a cruiser's guns.

Fall of Wake Island.

All will remember with reverence the epic of Wake island, when a handful of U. S. marines, marooned on a tiny atoll in the Southwest Pacific, made history in Courage. On this occasion a heroic garrison of less than 400 marines defended Wake Island against a powerful Japanese attacking force, from December 2 to 22, until they were overwhelmed by sheer numbers. With a few out-dated planes and a gun or two our boys sank seven Jap warships, one cruiser, four destroyers, one submarine and one gunboat.

Fall of Bataan.

The next staggering shock of the war was the fall of Manila and the U. S. naval base of Cavite, in the Philippines. America took heart, though, when it learned of the magnificent defense which was put up by U. S. and Filipino troops in the rugged terrain of Bataan peninsula, under the leadership of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. As it was impossible to get reinforcements through the Japanese naval blockade of the Philippines, Bataan appeared doomed. We recall that in Bataan's darkest hour MacArthur was spirited out of the islands in a remarkable under-cover dash to Australia by the "mosquito boat" hero of Subic Bay, Lieut. John D. Bulkeley.

Lieut. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright took over on Bataan—Wainwright, the stony-faced general whom the boys loved as much as MacArthur. Lacking food, heavy guns, planes and tanks, and facing an overwhelming superiority in enemy forces, Wainwright's men were finally overwhelmed by Jap forces estimated at 200,000 on April 9.

Long after the guns on Bataan ceased firing, the guns of Corregidor (Wainwright's Rock) kept firing. Wainwright and some of his men had, fortunately enough, succeeded in getting on the Rock before Bataan fell. Completely cut off from reinforcements, and heavily outnumbered, Corregidor surrendered to the Japs on May 6. Wainwright and his gallant band are now presumed to be prisoners of the Japs.

Battle of Java Sea.

The battle of the Java sea began February 27, when the Allied fleet attacked the superior Japanese fleet, off the Netherlands East Indies. In this engagement 13 United Nations warships totaling 47,708 tons were lost in a series of engagements lasting from February 27 to March 1. Included in the U. S. losses was the 9,050-ton cruiser "Houston," and the 1,193 ton destroyer "Pope." The Allies lost all five cruisers which participated in the action.

These losses were hard to take, but America began to smile again—in fact it howled with delight—when the big news broke that Brig. Gen. James ("Jimmy") Doolittle, famous speed flier and World War I ace, had dropped plenty of "eggs" over Tokyo with a squadron of North American B-25s. That "mission" was fulfilled on April 18, and it went over big, both here in America and in Tokyo.

First Real Victory of War.

In the battle of that island-studded ocean known as the Coral sea, which is near the Solomon islands and about 1,000 miles northeast of Australia, America's first real victory of the war with Japan was scored. The action occurred on May 4 and called forth deeds of valor as thrilling as any in all American history. The Coral Sea battle was the first great naval defeat ever dealt the imperial Japanese fleets. And yet this great battle was fought entirely in the air, by the planes of opposing aircraft carriers.

The ships engaged in this battle never got sight of each other. They slugged it out without firing a single gun at another ship—the first engagement of its kind in history. In this first great victory for the U. S. in this global war the Japs lost more than 15 ships sunk and at least 20 others severely damaged. The action perhaps saved Australia from invasion.

However, America paid a price for her victory in the sultry Coral sea. In this engagement the 880-foot aircraft carrier Lexington, famed ship that laid the foundation for our modern navy's aircraft carrier operations, went to the bottom. This happened on May 7.

The destruction of a Japanese armada some hundreds of miles off Midway island, on June 4 and 5, was another action of the same kind. In this engagement U. S. army bombers roared off from their bases on Midway island—just another dot on the Pacific—to meet the most formidable array of warships that imperial Japan ever sent steaming against a foe. The armada was put to complete rout.

The carrier Yorktown was lost in the Battle of Midway. It went to the bottom on June 7 in the final phases of the great sea-air battle. But before the grand old "Y" went down she catapulted from her flight deck the dive bombers, fighters and torpedo planes that swung the tide of battle in favor of Old Glory. A heavy toll of Jap ships was taken.

Japs Invade Aleutians.

Early in June, after bombing Dutch Harbor in Alaska, Jap forces invaded several of the Aleutian islands, in the North Pacific. They made their main stronghold Kiska, and evidently believed that the everlasting fogs that shroud these islands would be their protection. But Uncle Sam was up there, too, and soon the fleet's heavy guns, Catalina Flying Boats, B-17s and B-24s (Flying Fortresses and Liberators) began bombing and blasting them out. On August 8, a U. S. navy task force, consisting of a great concentration of cruisers and destroyers, glided through the Aleutian fogs almost to the very guns of the invaders and hurled 400 tons of TNT and steel into Jap shipping and shore installations in Kiska harbor. In the battle of Kiska only one observation plane was lost. Not as much as a machine gun bullet hit the fleet.

Since that time the Japs have pulled out of the Aleutians, with the exception of Kiska, their main stronghold, and the United States has strengthened its position against them by occupation of the Andreanof group of the Aleutians—much closer to Jap-held Kiska.

Old Glory Hoisted in Solomons.

On the very day when the Japs in Kiska took such a pounding from U. S. forces—exactly eight months to the day after Pearl Harbor—Old Glory was hoisted by U. S. marines over the first territory taken back from the Japs. This glorious event took place on the mountainous island of Guadalcanal, key to the Solomon Islands in the Southwest Pacific. This 100-mile long island lies athwart the strategic route to Australia.

The Japs had labored long in hacking an airfield out of the tropical wilderness of Guadalcanal. The marines took it away from them, and there has been a continuing day and night battle for possession of the airfield ever since. In their efforts to recover this vital airfield (Henderson Field) and the key island, the Japs have risked placing the main force of their navy within range of MacArthur's deadly Flying Fortresses and the "Forts" that roar up off of Henderson Field.

We have lost some fine ships in the region of Guadalcanal, but losses on the island have been light compared to what the Japs have lost—according to navy reports their losses run four or five times as heavy as ours. However, there has been a running battle for continued possession of the island on the part of the U. S., and for re-possession on part of the Japs. Day and night the pounding goes on, from sea and sky, but the marines, backed by the army and navy, have hung on and have made some gains.

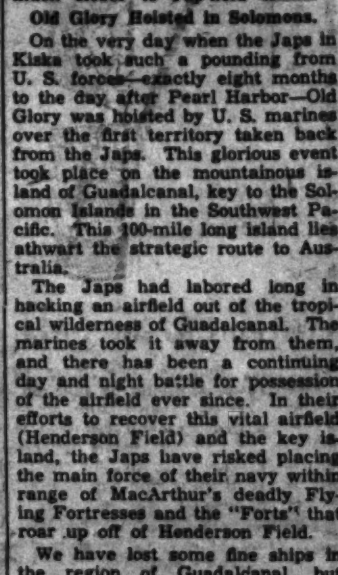
A real show-down between U. S. and Jap forces in the Solomons came about in mid-November when the greatest naval battle since Jutland in 1916 was fought. Supported by MacArthur's big bombers the navy, in a three-day running battle, smashed a tremendous enemy armada, lifting the immediate threat to U. S. positions on Guadalcanal.

As we pause to remember Pearl Harbor, we must, to get the overall picture, have in mind the heroic work of U. S. air pilots over China, and U. S. air pilots co-operating with the Royal Air Force in almost daily or nightly operations over Hitler's Reich, and over what was known as Occupied France. We must remember the fine work done by American troops in co-operation with Australians, who have pushed back the Japs in New Guinea, turning the tide of battle in the Owen Stanley mountains, saving Port Moresby, and helping to remove the threat from Australia. Day by day through all the months this has been going on—brave men dying—while we take time out to read about it.

Opening of the Second Front.

Things came to a head in the African desert early in November. Thousands of American boys, tank men and aviators participated in the great push of the British Eighth army against Gen. Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps, which at one time was dangerously close to the Suez canal — one of Britain's darkest hours. Swiftly on the heels of this battle, which became a rout as British forces broke through the El Alamein line, America got the world-shaking news of the opening of the long expected Second Front at an unexpected spot in North Africa, on Saturday, November 7.

Ah, we've forgotten for the moment that raid on Dieppe, in Occupied France—that dangerous, costly raid last August when American Rangers were the first actual units to participate in land operations on the continent during this war. The Dieppe raid was not only a rehearsal for the second front, but also a red herring drawn across the bloody Nazi trail. The Dieppe raid was the foundation of the magnificent success with which the AEF in North Africa was launched, under the brilliant leader, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.



When Major General Wainwright, hero of Corregidor, saw that defeat was inevitable he said, "I'll stay with my men." And he did. General Wainwright (shown above) is now a prisoner of the Japs.

Hero Ship Sails Into Enemy Fleet, All Guns Blazing

In the second round of the battle for Guadalcanal, in mid-November, when the Japs threw in all they had to recapture the island with its strategic airfield, the navy did a magnificent job. In this engagement, despite their great numerical superiority in ships, enemy losses were about three to our one.

At the height of the action the cruiser San Francisco sailed right into the enemy fleet—right through the enemy fleet—as President Roosevelt told the story. All guns were blazing. At point blank range she engaged a Japanese battleship and disabled her so she could be sunk by torpedoes.

Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, a close friend of President Roosevelt, who was aboard the San Francisco in command of the spearhead of the attacking force, gave his life for his country in this battle. The San Francisco, although hit many times, was brought back to port.

THE MEANING OF CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Colossians 3:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular.—I Corinthians 12:27.

Church membership means a great deal; a fact which has been obscured by the prevalent idea that joining the church is just like joining any other organization. We need to be reminded again and again that the local or denominational organization has real meaning only as it represents in the world a fellowship of true believers who, by the new birth, have become part of the living and true church, which is the body of which Christ is the Head.

It is likewise essential that believers know what their membership in the church means, so that they may fully appreciate it and properly present it to the world.

I. A New Life (vv. 1-3).

The church member is (or should be) a Christian, that is, one who has passed from death to life through the regenerating work of God in Christ (John 3:6, 7). Thus he has become "a new creature; old things have passed away; behold all things are become new" (II Cor. 5:17).

This new spiritual being has entirely changed interests and desires. The things of the world which he used to love have now become distasteful to him. The things of the Spirit which used to seem strange and not understandable to him (I Cor. 2:14) now become the center of his life. Being risen with Christ in newness of life he seeks those things which are above.

II. A Changed Life (vv. 4-13).

Setting one's heart upon things above means that the life will be changed. There will be a putting off of the things of earth and a putting on of the new man, in practice as well as in creed.

Although the Christian is a new creature in Christ, he bears with him until he dies (or Jesus comes) the old nature, which tries to hold him down, to draw him back to the worldly and fleshly things from which he was saved.

But the Christian is to "make no provision for the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof" (Rom. 13:14). He is rather to "reckon" himself "to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive into God through Jesus Christ our Lord."

This calls for an act of his will (and a repeated or continuous act) by which he puts away the sinful things mentioned in verses 5-9. One might sum them up in two groups: (1) sexual indecency and immorality (v. 5), and (2) wicked words and attitudes (vv. 8, 9). The early church had no corner on such sins. They mar Christian fellowship now. They ought not do so, for the church member should show the new life of the soul by a changed life before his fellowman.

III. A Gracious Life (vv. 14-17).

Too often, following Christ—and church membership—has not seemed attractive to the unbeliever, nor has it recommended the grace of God, because it has been a sad, unpleasant, negative thing which God never intended it to be.

To the average non-Christian (rightly or wrongly), the matter of being a Christian seems to be a rather drab affair of denying one's self the interesting and pleasant things of life. Those who feel that way have never seen the real thing, for if they had, they would sense (even though they could not understand it) that here was the fulfillment of all that is best in life.

The purpose and plan of God for man is that he should be in fellowship with Him, and thus to be set free from the limitations and the disappointments of human life apart from God. The normal life of the Christian is one of love, peace, joy, fellowship, praise and thankfulness. Let us make it just that in this world of hatred, war, sorrow, division, weeping and ingratitude.

This portion of Scripture merits a closer examination. Note first that love (use "love" for charity in v. 14) is the bond which unites these Christian graces into a whole which is harmonious and well-balanced.

Naturally, the peace of Christ will be the ruling factor in such a life, controlling the heart, the seat of man's emotions and affections.

Such a life is cultivated and developed by the indwelling of God's Word and (note it) "richly." The weakness of many a church is found right here—there is so little teaching and receiving of the Word into the heart.

Christian faith expresses itself in song. "Thou hast put gladness in my heart" (Ps. 4:7), and that means a song. How true it is that hymns and songs teach and admonish us.

The life of the Christian church member is always conditioned by one perfect controlling influence—the will of God. He does all things, even the supposedly little or secular things, in the name of the Lord Jesus, with a constant thankfulness which goes up like a sweet incense to the Father through Christ.

Power of Russ Offensives Peril Nazi Armies From Moscow Line to Caucasus; Axis Stakes Africa Defense on Bizerte; Germans Seize French Port of Toulon

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

FRENCH FLEET:
Toulon Occupied

When Adolf Hitler tore up the German-French armistice and marched into unoccupied France back in early November his armies by-passed the port of Toulon where the French fleet was known to be based. Such generosity lasted but two short weeks and then came the Nazi order to demobilize the army and navy of Vichy France in what was termed a move to counteract the gains of the United Nations in North Africa.

This meant that Toulon was being seized by the Germans and with it, the French fleet. Such action was taken, said the Nazis, because of "breaches of honor" on the part of French officials.

A Berlin announcement telling of the occupation of Toulon admitted that "part of the French fleet has scuttled itself." It was also admitted that the French forces in that area had "resisted" for a few hours before the city fell to the combined German-Italian armies.

SOUTH PACIFIC:
'Jap by Jap'

It was "Jap by Jap" as the American forces pushed slowly forward around Buna and Gona in New Guinea.

Even as the end appeared near for the enemy it was learned that he had been successful in landing fresh reinforcements.

Discovery that these new troops had been landed came when identification of enemy dead showed marine insignia different from that found on previous Jap casualties. These new uniforms and the excellent physical condition of the troops confirmed recent landings of strong reinforcements. Special markings on the uniforms indicated that these landing forces of shock troops had evidently been sent to relieve the hard-pressed Japs being pushed steadily backward by sustained Allied drives.

For almost two weeks Jap naval forces had been prowling off the New Guinea shore trying to get land forces on to the island. U. S. fliers were able to sink four destroyers and a light cruiser while this action was going on. Then under the cover of darkness and with adverse weather prevailing the Jap troops were finally landed.

While this made conditions more difficult for the Allied forces trying to drive the Japs off the island, there was no letup in the fierceness of the attack. From General MacArthur's headquarters came reports that the U. S.-Australian advance had been counted in yards and even feet as the inner defense circle of the enemy was pierced.

Meanwhile on Guadalcanal, U. S. troops continued to advance slowly east and west of Henderson airfield.

HALSEY:
'One of Five'

With record-breaking swiftness the senate confirmed President Roosevelt's action in promoting Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, leader of the victorious American fleet in the Solomon Islands sea battle, to the rank of full admiral.

Thus thoughtful, dogged Halsey became the fifth U. S. naval officer to carry the title of admiral. The others now serving are Adm. Ernest J. King, commander of the United States fleet; Chester W. Nimitz, head of the Pacific fleet; Royal E. Ingersoll, Atlantic fleet commander, and Harold R. Stark, commander of American naval forces in Europe.

ADM. WILLIAM F. HALSEY JR.
. . . Victory paid dividends.

RUSSIAN FRONT:
Reds Turn Table

Adolf Hitler's costliest venture of 1942 reaped frustration, as the Russian army mammoth new offensive brought relief to Stalingrad and threatened disaster to the Nazi's entire expedition beyond the Don river.

Gathering steamroller momentum on a 200-mile front the new Russian drive pierced deep into the Don-bounded area, slashing the flanks of the German wedge converging on Stalingrad, cutting the two railroads supplying the Nazi forces, and capturing dozens of towns and cities. One early Moscow communique reported that more than 100,000 German troops had been killed or captured in the first phases of the offensive.

That Marshal Timoshenko's strategy had been well planned was indicated by the effectiveness of the pincer movements it thrust out north and south of Stalingrad and southeast toward Rostov. This provided a trap for Nazi divisions between the Red spearheads and Stalingrad.

That the Soviet offensive was even more far-flung than Moscow at first reported was indicated by German high command communiques revealing that the Russian army had struck 600 miles to the north of Stalingrad, on the Rzhev front, west of Moscow. This meant danger to the Nazi winter lines in the area bordering Latvia, and the necessity of spreading German manpower thinner by bringing more forces into action at widely scattered points.

MARSHAL TIMOSHENKO

Favorable as the outlook was, however, military experts cautioned temperance in analyzing the reports. Germany, they pointed out, still occupied vast strategic and industrial areas of European Russia. The Nazis had encountered fierce Soviet resistance last winter and still had emerged to start this year's offensives. The Russ were on the move, but a tough campaign was ahead.

NORTH AFRICA:
Axis Last Stand

It was clear that Adolf Hitler meant to make the Allies pay a good price for possession of the last key Axis strongholds in North Africa. For he had concentrated air power and manpower in Bizerte, the "Gibraltar" of Tunisia and was using the short, overnight shuttle route between Sicily and the African mainland to reinforce his garrisons there.

Despite the vigilance of American and British air and sea power it had been possible for Hitler to move convoys across the narrow straits under cover of darkness.

The American and British forces demonstrated their will and capacity to get the job done by the steady encirclement of the Axis-held ports of Tunis and Bizerte, despite the first downpours of the North African rainy season.

Air warfare was on the increase with the Axis getting the worst of it. British and American planes harassed the defenders of Bizerte with bombing attacks. Allied bombers raided the Gela airport in Sicily and attacked Axis shipping. Meanwhile RAF detachments swooped down on Tripoli, supply port for Rommel's Afrika Korps.

Four hundred miles east of Tripoli, the British eighth army had mustered men, tanks, guns and planes for its showdown battle with the battered legions of Marshal Rommel in the El Agheila defile.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

ROME: Mobilization of workers from many parts of Italy for repair and reconstruction work in Genoa, Turin, Milan and other northern cities "devastated by attacks of enemy aviation" was reported under way here by Fascist leaders. This report was coupled with recent official statements urging city dwellers to move to rural areas unless needed in war work.

LONDON: British salvage experts have the job narrowed down to so fine an art, that cans of powdered household milk now have their contents stamped on the tin instead of a paper wrapper; bus tickets are 1-5000th of an inch thinner than in prewar days; and government typists by closer spacing and other economies now save 5,000 tons of paper every year.

Washington, D. C.

NOT ONLY A FIGHTER, BUT ALSO A DIPLOMAT

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower has a lot of tough jobs in Africa, and one of them, which doesn't get into the headlines, is to be the diplomatic negotiator among high French officials.

Among other things, he has been very adroit in handling General Giraud, who escaped from France dressed as an old woman and who now is in command of French forces in North Africa.

Actually, General Giraud expected to be commander of all forces in North Africa, both French and American. He is one of the highest generals in the French army, and before France fell, would have replaced General Gamelin as chief of staff had he not been taken prisoner. Therefore, since he outranks Eisenhower and has had much more varied experience, it is not unnatural that Giraud should aspire to be commander-in-chief of the entire North African operation, including the U. S. army.

Eisenhower, however, has a charming personality, a broad grin, a smattering of French, and had little trouble in handling General Giraud.

Another complication was the fact that Giraud hates Admiral Darlan. Yet Darlan, as a member of the cabinet, outranks him. In addition, there is General Nogues, another top-ranking officer. So it has been worked out that Nogues commands the French civil population, Giraud the French army, and Darlan the French fleet.

SIDETRACKED PLANES

When Wendell Willkie conferred with Stalin in Moscow, the Russian leader was critical of the British for sidetracking American lend-lease goods in Scotland and substituting for them inferior British war supplies.

The inside story of this can now be told.

Last summer, a shipment of Airacobras was en route to Russia from the United States and the convoy stopped to refuel in the British Isles. At that time, General Eisenhower, preparing for the second front in Africa, asked that these fast fighting planes be given to him instead of being sent on to Russia.

General Eisenhower was so insistent that he finally went to Prime Minister Churchill personally, who finally agreed that the Airacobras be sidetracked for use on the forthcoming African front.

OVERRULING ROOSEVELT

More and more it looks as if Ferdinand Eberstadt, the Wall Street broker, is becoming the most powerful man in the War Production board and one of the most powerful in the government. It hasn't leaked out yet, but recently he managed to overrule the vice president of the United States, the undersecretary of state, and Lend-Lease Administrator Ed Stettinius.

Some time ago, Eberstadt appointed as chief of WPB export priorities, Major Tom Armstrong, of Standard Oil of New Jersey, who had operated in various Latin American countries. Armstrong had been vigorous in bucking the development of Latin American government-owned oil companies, and the Latin Americans don't like him. Therefore, they squawked when they heard he would now sit in their all-important priorities position where he could decide whether they could, or could not, receive oil equipment to develop their government-owned industries in competition with Standard and private companies.

Undersecretary of State Welles agreed with the Latin Americans, and protested to the President. So did Vice President Wallace of the BEW, and also Stettinius, who buys lend-lease oil equipment for Latin American governments.

As a result of these protests, Roosevelt ordered Donald Nelson to dismiss Major Armstrong. However, Eberstadt in effect has overruled the President. He insisted that Armstrong remain. And he is still on the job.

Let's Call A Spade A Spade, Not A Shovel

I am tired of hinting. I am tired of calling a spade a digging implement or a shovel or a posthole digger. I think it best to call a spade a spade, and let it go at that.

There is one particular young man—not engaged in any vital industry, not married and possessing no persons dependentt upon him for support. He is of draft age. His name is on every tongue, and, therefore, it is not necessary for me to call him by name. His parents are old, it is true. It is no doubt true that he is of great assistance to them in a physical way. All of this is granted, and it is also granted that it is a pity that we have a global war going on—a war which the fate and fortune of all of us, including those of this young man, are at stake. Yet this young man, supposed to be well to do, has a GREATER stake in the preservation of property rights than nine out of ten young men already in service. THIS YOUNG MAN HAS NEVER BEEN SENT TO SHELBY FOR EXAMINATION BY THE ARMY DOCTORS, as have been ALL other young men who were not notoriously incapacitated.

If I were asked WHY this young man had not been sent to Camp Shelby for examination by Army doctors, as have been ALL other young men who were not notoriously incapacitated, I would have to say, "I do not know positively, but I have heard a hell of a lot." I hear that the reason he has not been sent is that he is subject to epileptic fits. If this is true, he is most unfortunately. Diligent inquiry and personal knowledge of the young man for many years have not revealed to me that he IS subject to these fits. I never saw him have a fit. I never heard of him having a fit—until the day he was supposed to go with a bunch to Shelby. In a conversation with me recently, he advanced his aged and crippled parents as excuse for his not going, but he DID NOT mention any physical disability. Why he came to me, I do not know, for I am not on the draft board. I did tell him, however, that he was no better than I was, for I volunteered about a month after war was declared in 1917. I told him he was no better than my oldest son who volunteered a whole year before Pearl Harbor. I told him he was no better than my youngest son—by the way, is married—who volunteered in the Air Corps a month or so ago. I did tell him that it was unfortunate that his parents were old and infirm, but that his parents were amply able financially to employ competent nurses. I did tell him I was sympathetic with the frailties of his parents, who are excellent people. I did tell him that I, too, was the only child in my parents' family. I did tell him that he should volunteer. I do not recall whether I told him so, but I could have told him that he was no better than any parent's son, and that he was no dearer to his parents than any other son, even if that son was one of sixteen children.

This young man drives a car about the streets of Grenada, tho he, thru shame or for other reasons, does not appear very frequently. If he is subject to epileptic fits—as is the gossipy reason for his remaining in our midst—it is positively dangerous to the public for one so afflicted to drive a car. I saw a man have a fit one time. Without any warning whatever, he screamed, and fell to the floor, every muscle apparently useless. Picture, if you will, wrat COULD happen if, while driving in heavy trafic, a fit came over a driver of a car. The car would become an engine of death, for the rigid driver would have absolutely no control over the car.

My conclusion is this: send that young man to Camp Shelby for examination by the Army doctors—as nearly all other young men are sent. If the doctors at Shelby turn him down, nobody can have a word of criticism for the local board. As it is, there is a hell of a lot of what appears to be justifiable criticism of the local board, which, in this supposed-to-be democratic country, is supposed to feed all men out of the same spoon.

Feckless Business

The Federal Compress & Warehouse Co., the pioneer and the biggest operator in the field of storage and compressing cotton, was charged with unfair trade practices by the Federal Trade Commission back in May, 1940 The commission complained to itself and was very scathing in its charges. The commission has been investigating its own charges against the company for about a year and a half, and on Wednesday in Washington it exonerated the company. The performance took lots of time and energy, cost a lot of money, and in general was a nuisance. In the light of good common sense the entire performance was unnecessary, for the commission could and should have satisfied itself in the first place.

The sort of feckless business involved, however, is inevitable as long as the same Federal agency is permitted to be detective, witness, judge, jury and all without satisfactorily speedy right of appeal and recourse to the courts. It is all of a piece with allowing Federal bureaus and the like to meddle with business unler a system that gives their arbitrary rulings the effect of law, especially if the business concerned happens to find it impossible to engage in long and costly controversy over what should be matters of fact. Congress still has, somewhere around the place, the Walter-Logan Bill that would amend the present haphazard and essentially unjust system of government by dicta from quasi-judicial, quasi-enforcement outfits that infest Washington.—Commercial Appeal.

Mr. R. L. (Red) Taylor, a man reared in the red hills of Providence in Grenada County, is chairman of the Board of Federal Compress & Warehouse Co.

Bargains

A print-paper salesman and a successful publisher were discussing the future of a country newspaper. The salesman's territory covered a wide radius and he had an extensive acquaintance among newspaper publishers. The publisher was operating a successful newspaper, and was looking for other papers, if and when they could be purchased. His paper was prospering largely because he had increased both his subscription and advertising rates to meet the increasing cost of production and the decreasing linage of advertising.

The salesman named some eight or more papers which he said could be bought within a year at the bargain price the publisher was looking for.

"All of them are on the down grade," said the salesman, "because the owners are afraid, and they refuse to increase subscription and advertising rates. All of these papers have been good properties in the past. They are in good fields. They could be prosperous today if the publishers would do what thousands of others have done successfully. But they do not, and will not. These publishers and their families are today eating stews, instead of their customary steaks. It will not be long before the ability to purchase stews will have disappeared, and any one of these papers can be bought at a small fraction of what it is worth."

That successful publisher is awaiting the day when these publishers who are afraid to ask a fair price for their product can no longer buy stews. When that day comes, he will buy one or more of those properties at such price as he wants to pay. He is looking for a bargain, and he will get it.

Increased costs and decreasing advertising linage have made old-time subscription and advertising rates impossible if standards are to be maintained. The sure way of killing a newspaper is to lower quality standards. Today people are demanding more of newspapers than ever before. Today people are quite willing to pay increased price for newspapers just as they are paying increased prices for other commodities. That fact has been demonstrated in practically thousands of instances. Daily papers, almost without exception, have raised subscription rates from $1.50 to $5.00 a year, and but few, if any, have lost circulatiton. Hundreds of weekly papers have raised subscription prices from 50 cents to as much as $1.00, and have reported no subscription losses of any consequences.

Despite these experiences on the part of others, there are still hundreds of weekly newspaper publishers who are trying to pull through at prewar prices; who are eating stews instead of beefsteaks. Those who are attempting to make ends meet by reducing the quality and quantity of their papers are suffering greater losses than increased prices could possibly occasion.

It is among such newspaper properties that bargains will be found in the comparative near future.

The above is from the Publishers' Auxiliary, the newspaper for newspapers It is fresh off the press.

It so nearly justifies our contention made in last week's paper, about increasing advertising rates, and so nearly justifies our raise in subscription rates made last March that it is worth publishing.

Faced with the alternative of keeping rates as of prewar days and REDUCING standards, and raising rates and maintaining standards, we have unhesitatingly chose the latter.

When we raised our subscription rates, WE DID NOT LOSE A SINGLE SUBSCRIBER; in fact, since that time, we are sure we have gained at least 250.

Shall He Close His Plant

A Western printer, having die-cutting equipment, recently wrote the Printing and Publishing Branch of the WPB for information as to the steps necessary for obtaining a contract for making certain kinds of gaskets.

The reply directed the printer to his local WPB field office, but concluded with the following paragraph:

"If it can, the local office should be able to put you in touch with contractors interested in your facilities. If it can't perhaps you will be making your greatest contribution to the war by closing your plant for the duration."

Needless to say, the paragraph did the trick. The printer answered that he took "violent exception to the last sentence" and he convincingly pointed out that he would not voluntarily close a plant, the building-up of which took hard work during a lifetime.

The closing sentence of the WPB's letter was unnecessary. The printer asked for definite information; and the reply should have given it and stopped there. Conditions alone will dictate to the printer if and when he should close his plant.

Yet the printer got what he asked for, because his first letter to the WPB pointed out that the printing business "like many businesses was fast becoming a non-essential and that we were anxious to continue by possibly doing some needed and useful war work."

Printing is not becoming a non-essential work. The production of certain kinds of printed products may be stopped for the time being, but the occupation and industry of printing is very much a part of war production and war waging. Many a progressive and alert graphic arts plant in the country can bear witness to that.—Graphic Arts Monthly.

Christmas Gifts You Knit or Crochet Will Be Appreciated

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

LIKE to crochet? Like to knit? If so good fortune attends you in that your yuletide gift problems are solved. Gifts you make yourself are always appreciated much more than the usual run of presents that you buy at the last moment in a panicky rush with a hasty parting injunction to the salesperson to "wrap as a gift and be sure not to forget to take the price tag off." Yes, indeed, it's when you crochet or knit your affection stitch by stitch into the article you give that you convey a message that means something really deep and lasting and worthwhile.

This year knitters and crocheters are in their glory, for never have the knit and crochet arts played so glamorous a role in the fashion world as now. Yarn novelties of every description are the rage. The new hat and huge pillow-muff sets that work yarn so intriguingly, the hats bejeweled and bedfringed, the muffs trimmed with shaggy loop-crochet borders; the sweaters that thrill you with their little crochet ruffle trimmings and ball fringe; the crochet necklace fantasies; the snoods, wimples, headkerchiefs and fanciful crochet shawls that are writing a new chapter into the knit and crochet story simply fascinate with their gay charm.

Wouldn't any girl love to receive a pair of after-skiing socks among the gift suggestions pictured! These snow white socks so gaily flower embroidered are knit of soft Shetland floss, and it does not take long for a nimble knitter to make them.

The snow white mittens with vividly colorful flower decoration spell hours of fun and frolic for the fortunate recipient, but it costs the ambitious knitter but a few leisure half hours and three balls of sweater wool for knitting needles to click into shape. So there goes another gift problem solved.

Blouse sweater, seven balls; hat, three balls of mercerized crochet cotton; that's all you will need, plus a crochet hook and a determination "to do and to dare" in order to make the matching sweater blouse and pillbox hat with mesh snood illustrated to the left in the above picture. Here is an ensemble that ranks ace-high in smartness, comfort and good looks. When you are wrapping this choice gift up in tissue paper and gay holiday ribbons, you will be feeling an urge within to knit one just like it for your very own self.

For that friend who is the "soul of order" a set of candy-stripe crochet clothes hangers would be a grand idea. Three balls of mercerized cotton will do the trick. It is really very easy to crochet the peppermint stripes, and the color contrast is very effective.

Crochet is invading many new fields this year. Unique and timely as a gift is the American flag that is crocheted of fast-color pearl cotton in simple double crochet. The colors are true and inspiring. This precious gift makes an appropriate wall hanging for the college girl and any aspiring young boy would covet it for his room. For outdoor use it will be found sturdy and durable.

The three hats pictured achieve clever styling through the use of yarn or chenille trimming. The hat in the top oval is a soft fir green felt with a loop yarn trim that forms a saucy tassel at the back. The neat little number in the oval below is a high-crown black felt bonnet with a crochet band of beige yarn. The youthful beanie is of quilt-stitched felt in bright red with a pompom of looped chenille. The matching veil adds a piquant note.

Coat News

A new type of fur coat enters the fashion picture this winter. It is the coat of flat peltry that is neatly and expertly tailored along lines of Chesterfieldian simplicity. The man-tailored coat pictured above is of a new fur from South America called Lincoln lamb. It is fashioned with a belted back to be worn over suits and uniforms. It is in "service blue," which is a new copyrighted color. Women of discriminating taste like this new classic type in black Persian lamb, as it has an air of quiet elegance about it that is most convincing.

Winter White Plays Many Style Roles

Throughout fashion circles it's winter white that everybody is talking about. The college and 'teen age girl is so winter-white conscious she is buying her date frocks, her sports coats, her evening sweater and her dress-up hat in white. For her date frock she chooses white jersey. In the daytime she wears it with a red belt and carries a red bag. After five o'clock she changes her accessories to a gold belt and gold shoes, and a gold flower nestles in her curls.

When she buys a white sweater of softest Shetland wool, she chooses the new surplice type, and she buttons it with huge rhinestone buttons. Young girls consider the new three-quarter length capes of white fur or of teddy bear cloth quite a "find" and just the wrap to wear over their dance frocks.

For drama, try a white hat with a black costume. It should be flirtatiously small. Pert little sailors and bretons have black wing trims or tassel effects. And here's an important message — it's that white gloves have returned, and we will all be wearing them this winter.

Ruffles Trim Everything From Necklines to Hems

Designers are doing clever things with tiny ruffle trimmings this season. A flock of charming, youthful dresses are coming in with cunning little ruffles outlining the deep U-necklines, and the long slit pockets at each side of the skirt are indicated with vertical placement of the ruffles. The ruffles are of self fabric, ribbon or Val lace, or they may be a fluting of crochet. So important is the ruffle-edge theme it even appears on sweaters.

Good Care of Tractor Required at Present

Production Limitations Requires Check-up

With limitations on production, it's extremely important that every farmer gets full power and longer life from his tractor by taking the best kind of care of it, says E. R. Gross, professor of agricultural engineering at Rutgers university, in offering tips on making adjustments to the valuable machines.

"In order to get the maximum use out of every ounce of fuel, it is necessary to adjust the carburetor once or twice a year," Gross reminds farmers.

"This should be done with the tractor warmed up and while in operation on a normal belt load. A carburetor is not easy to adjust while on traction load. Too lean a mixture of fuel is as bad as one that is too rich.

"Although the right adjustments vary, you can gauge it accurately if you lean the mixture first by turning the load needle valve until there is missing or back-firing. Then turn the needle back until the engine carries the load smoothly, and adjust it slowly so that the full effect of changes in the mixture reaches all cylinders. Wisconsin Researchers Hint Greater Use of Urea

Urea will be post-war cow feed. Such is the prediction of Wisconsin research workers who are continuously searching for ways to cut the cost of feeding. They believe that if milk prices should drop after the war, farmers will hold one high trump in the form of cost-cutting urea rations, now being tested at the University of Wisconsin.

Heroine of this work is the famous heifer with the "window" in her side, who allows research workers to take samples of partly digested feedstuffs from her paunch. By analyzing these samples, it is possible to learn what the animal's digestive system is able to do with the various rations fed to her.

The scientists also tested the opposite extreme of the timothy-urea ration by supplementing the ration with molasses, whose sugars are even more quickly fermentable than starch. That worked all right, but not any better than farm grains.

Accidents on Farms

The National Safety council rates agriculture the most hazardous industry in the United States with 4,200 accidental deaths during the last year on record. Tractors and farm machinery are at the head of the farm-accident list.

Replacement of Cows

About 20 per cent of the 26,000,000 cows that comprise the nation's milk producing factory must be replaced every year.

Fill the Christmas Cookie Jar!
(See Recipes Below.)

Cookie Treats

Festivity reigns in the home where the cookie jar fairly pops with Santas, Christmas trees and reindeer made up into cookies dusted with shimmering colored sugars. Have a few fruity and honey cookies along with the real sugar cookies and you will win every youngster's fondest affection.

Since this year's Christmas tree ornaments may be a bit on the slim side, plan to string a few of the cookies on the tree to make for decorations. This will be a real old-fashioned Christmas.

You'll want to pack boxes, too, to send to that son at camp, perhaps, if he is not too far, and also for the one who is home on furlough, or for those nice neighbors who just moved in.

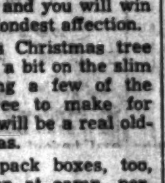
Come, join the cookie parade with the first Christmas goody on our list:

Honey Butterballs.
(Makes 30 to 40)

- 1 cup butter
- ¼ cup honey
- 2 cups sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 2 cups finely chopped nuts

Cream butter, add honey, flour, salt and vanilla. Mix well and add chopped nuts. Form into small balls on a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 35 minutes. Roll in powdered sugar while hot. Cool, then roll again in powdered sugar.

Have you ever watched the face of a child light up when he picks and chooses his favorite Christmas-y shaped cookie with his favorite colored sugar? Here's the recipe:



Old-Fashioned Sugar Cookies.
(Makes 3 dozen)

- ½ cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 2¼ cups flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup milk
- ½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg and beat in well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Cut with floured cookie cutter and sprinkle with white or colored sugar. Bake on a greased sheet in a moderately hot (375-degree oven. About 15 minutes. Thin, wafer-like cookies are made by chilling the dough first, then rolling thin, and lifting shapes onto cookie tin with spatula.

You'll find plenty of the victory vitamin, B-1, which nourishes nerve tissues in oatmeal. This plus iron for your blood and proteins for perking up worn-out tissues—and good flavor besides are found in this cookie:

Oatmeal Drops.

- 2 cups 3-minute oats
- 1 cup corn syrup
- ½ cup flour
- 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in 4 tablespoons boiling water
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup chopped raisins

Bring to a boil in a saucepan, the corn syrup, shortening, and raisins and cook for 5 minutes, then add soda. Mix in oats, flour and nutmeg. Blend well and drop by spoonfuls on a greased and floured baking sheet 2 inches apart. Bake in a hot (375-400-degree) oven for 10 minutes.

Raisin Bran Ginger Snaps.
(Makes 4 dozen)

- 1 cup sifted flour
- ¼ teaspoon soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1½ teaspoons ginger
- ½ cup molasses
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups raisin bran

Sift dry ingredients once, then sift again. Combine molasses and shortening and bring slowly to a boil. Boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool to lukewarm. Add raisin bran and mix well. Add flour mixture, working it thoroughly into dough. Chill until firm. Roll on a floured board, ⅛ inch thick, and cut with a floured cutter. Bake on a greased baking sheet in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 10 minutes.

A lacy, delicate cookie are these pecan crispies—perfect for making in the winter:

Pecan Crispies.
(Makes about 35 cookies)

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup pastry flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups coarsely chopped pecans

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and vanilla. Mix thoroughly and add flour, baking powder, salt and pecans. Drop half-spoonfuls apart on a buttered and floured tin. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees). Cool slightly before removing from pan.

Chocolate Crumb Cookies.
(Makes 3 dozen)

- 2 cups oven-popped rice cereal
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 1½ cups sweetened condensed milk
- 1 cup chopped nut meats
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon vanilla

Crush oven-popped rice cereal into fine crumbs. Melt chocolate over boiling water; remove from heat. Add condensed milk and blend well. Stir in crumbs, nut meats, salt and flavoring. Drop from tablespoon onto greased cookie sheet; bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Remove at once from cookie sheet with spatula.

Lynn Says:
The Score Card: Get into step with the meat-sharing program now—it's your assignment. Stuffings are advised as good extenders, as are stews, meat pies, meat loaves, soups, turnovers and curries.

Liver need not be included in the 2½-pound adult allowance, nor need the cold cuts, heart, sweetbreads, kidneys and other entrails.

Spices will be on the slender side from now on, but you can still have the best tasting food, ever, with domestic herbs and seasonings. You'll also enjoy emulsion flavors for baking and dessert-making. They come in wild cherry, almond, maple, lemon, and a grand citrus combination.

Vegetables that are tops on your list for wintry days include the Hubbard and acorn squashes, broccoli, beets, carrots, brussel sprouts, turnips and sweet potatoes.

Does the whipped cream get sulky? The cake fall at the crucial moment? The table decorations look flat and pointless? Explain your problem to Lynn Chambers and she'll tell you what to do about it. Write her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Ill. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your reply.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Until restrictions were placed on gasoline consumption, tires were wearing out eight times faster than they were being replaced.

We've all heard of wooden tires, but tires made of concrete have been, at least in one instance, substituted for the conventional rubber. A Parker Dam engineer had cast reinforced concrete tires on the rims of a portable welding machine. They worked.

As the temperature inside a tire increases, the pressure goes up, but it is poor rubber economy to "bleed" or let the air out of the tire when it is hot. To do so means under-inflation and rubber waste—when the cooling ends.

In 1911 a tire for the then popular make of car cost the motorist $28.50 and gave about 2500 miles. A comparable tire for the present day popular makes of cars can be had (with ration certificate) for about $15. Properly handled it will return close to 25,000 miles of service.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYE

By Mrs. W. W. Whitaker

"Do your Christmas shopping early" is excellent advise this year. Many of us will send gifts to the boys and unless we shop early, wrap and pack, and mail early, many a boy will be deeply disappointed at Christmas time and at best disappointment isn't very nice. So shop this week, get your package off and ask the one to whom you send it, not to open it until Christmas morning, and every one will be happy.

The government is considering making 3 cent value peices of money from materials non essential to war purposes. Maybe they will use a bit of our gold!

Many people who have voted the Democratic ticker all their lives will learn with appreciation that Miss Perkins is on the way out as a Cabinet member. The talk now is that labor leader, Miss Perkins, will become an administrator of one of the federal bureaus and that Ms. McNut will be Secretary of labor. The head of this important job should be a man, and a "good" man at that. We need a man to head the labor department not because it is pretty and noble and idealistic but because we need to adopt certain broad tenets of cooperation and a interchange of energies, a man who will encourage all new industrialist to do a greater job, and one who will be bold enough to play tomorrow across the board. America is at war on the production line as well as on the battlefield, and again we say, "its a man size job to be Secretary of Labor."

George Morris' Washington column had a terrible indictment in it on Monday of this week, concerning people who represent themselves as government agents and are imposing on farmers. We quote, "Actually the persons taking the hogs, timber and cash from farmers are not government representatives but thieves and grafters imposing upon the patriotism and fear of people. The reason they are able to get away with such out rages is that people have come to the conclusion that the administration is capable of anything."

Mr. Morris was writing of the condition created among people, especially farmers who have fine timber, abundant food crops and extra hogs and cattle above their immediate famil's need, and these "phony" representatives are hoodwinking farmers into selling their surplus to them.

SANTA CLAUS LETTERS

Dear Santa Claus:

W. S. OF C. S.

On Monday afternoon the ladies of Circle No. 1 of the Woman's Society of Christian Service honored Mrs. Ida Campbell, who for more than fifty years has been a member of the organization. This past year she has served as leader of this circle.

The party was given in the beautiful home of Mrs. W. E. Jackson, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

When Mrs. Campbell arrived she was presented with a tray of gifts, the first intimation she had that she was the guest of honor. Among the gifts were toy telephones, jumping hopes, lollipops, and puzzles which affored a great deal of amusement to everyone especially to the recipient.

The guests were then given some scrambled letters from which Mrs. Jackson told them to form the name of a very famous woman. When the letters were unscrambled the guests rose and gave the answer which was "Ida Campbell."

A series of poems with blanks to be filled in with the titles of songs when completed told some interesting details of Mrs. Campbell's life, and was among the other delightful contestt and games which filled the happy hour.

At the close of the games Mrs. Spivey Kent expressed for the circle the deep esteem and love in which Mrs. Campbell is held and presented to her two lovely gifts from the circle. The reading of a humorous poem accompanied the presentation of the purse.

Mrs. Jackson, whose gracious thoughtfulness was so largely responsible for the party, served her guests delicies salad sandwiches, punch and cookies.

Mrs. Campbell who said she was too deeply touched to express her real feelings nevertheless made each one present feel how very pleased she was over her friends' attention.

BRIDAL SHOWER

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Davis of Tie Plant with Miss Frances Davis, Mrs. R. J. Turnbo and Mrs. Ernest Barnet as hostess and co-hostess a lovely bridal shower was given in honor of the recent bride, Mrs. Newt Pittman, who before her marriage on October 26, was Miss Margaret Hardy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hardy of Tie Plant.

The happy bride looked so pretty in the lovely black dress that she wore. She is the bride of a Srg. in the Air Corps in Kansas. The room was beautifully decorated in our flag colors. The bride's chair was also beautifully decorated in the colors and the big "V" which we keep in front of us all the time was over the chair.

The guests being given an opportunity to write their best wishes for the bride as they entered was later read by the bride and enjoyed very much.

Games were entered into and enjoyed by 30 or 35 friends.

A funny reading on "Husbands" was given by Faye Pittman. Little Betty Faye and Nancy Ann Pittman brought in lovely gifts in the beautifully decorated red, white and blue wogan. The pretty little wagon had a very busy day, so many trips to make, but one good thing no "Gas" was needed for the engine.

The wedding cake with the very lovely little bride and groom on the cake was cut by Mrs. Pittman. Delicious punch and cake was enjoyed by all.—Contributed.

With news from the fighting fronts encouraging talk of an early peace and relaxation of war-time restrictions mete across the Home Front. The war agencies don't expect either . . . A look at the near future shows:

Tires on civilian cars wearing down eight times faster than they can be replaced. This means tighter control over auto driving, fewer deliveries, truck uses restricted; because if this rate continues, so many cars will be off the road that our transportation system will break down.

FEWER FOODS

Military victories in Europe won't give us stocks of rubber. Nor will they produce food. On the contrary, the further we penetrate, the more supplies our armies need and the more they will use to woo the favor of populations in countries they deliver from the Nazi yoke.

In 1943, we'll have reductions in some kinds of foods, fruits and vegetables. Distributors have already been given monthly quotas for canned goods milk shortages have already developed, many spices are scarce, and imported fruits, such as bananas, are almost unattainable.

SIMPLIFIED CLOTHING

Most of the new clothing has been simplified, to save cloth. Three inches will be snipped from shirttails made after December 15; wool use is sharply restricted.

MANPOWER SHORTAGE

The manpower shortage will become much greater than it is today. Women will work where women have seldom worked before. For example, Civil Service is trying to get ninety thousand women in the South for jobs in war industries——and they're being paid while they learn how to do tthe jobs. The Post Office can tell you about such training programs.

RED MEAT RATIONING

Meat is so necessary for soldiers, that severe penalties will be inflicted upon violators of the order which limits civilian delivery of cuts, from cattle, calves, sheep, lamb and hogs. The order applies to small country butchers as well as to large packers, and includes farmers who sell meat early.

Meat rationing may be expected early in 1943.

Coffee rationing is now in effect—School children who work on farms have been made eligible to purchase bicycles . . . No rationing of used cars is planned by OPA and such rumors are branded as false.

DRAFT FARM QUITTERS

The draft board has been instructed to immediately reclassify men who quit necessary farm jobs and make those men available for immediate military service.

WPB has served notice on the kids to take better care of their toys . . . Replacement parts, as well as new toys made of certain metals are banned for the duration.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
